The order of business for tomorrow, presumably after the tariff has been passed, will be Senator Chandler's resolution for the investigation of the Alabama election. After this all is uncertain. Almost everything will depend. Alabama election. After this all is uncertain. Almost everything will depend upon the action of the House on the tariff bill, but whatever that action may be, it can be counted upon as quite certain the two remaining appropriation bills will receive consideration some time during the week.

The conference on the sundry civil bill has been already largely disposed of, and it is not probable much more time will be spent upon it. The conference committee on the general deficiency bill has been in session all day, notwithstanding it is Sunday, and it was believed it would be in shape for early presentation to both houses.

If, therefore, the House should decide upon an opposite course, there is no saying what would happen in the Senate. The tariff is engressing the attention of the House should decide upon an opposite course, there is no saying what would happen in the Senate. All officers of the Chicago were presented to him in turn. The royal party was then escorted to all the different parts of the ship. They repeatedly expressed their admiration of the appearance of the vessel, and on quitting the Chicago the prince expressed the pleasure his visit had afforded him. The officers and crew of the Chicago are clated with the success of their boat's crew in Friday's regatta, as they beat several heretofore unbeaten crews. Some feeling is expressed, however, at the coldness displayed by the spectators on shore.

FLAGS AND THEIR MEANING.

Origin of the Design of the Union Jack.

[From the Outlook.] Next to our own flag, that of Great Britain interests us most. It is called the "union" flag, because it is three flags in one. The flag of England is a red cross on a white field; that of Scotland, a white St. Andrews' cross on a blue field. These flags were combined when England and Scotland united in 1883, and on the union with trained the when England and Scotland united in 1883, and on the union with freiand the Irish flag, a red St. Andrew's cross on a white field was added. The union of the three countries is thus indicated on the 'union." The St. George's cross of England remains as before, and is the central feature of the flag, dividing it into four quarters, occupied by the St. Andrew's crosses, the white of Scotland and the red of Ireland, which are placed side by side.

CURRANT SOUP. [From the New York Evening Post.]

There is an Americanized currant soup made by Mrs. Rorer that is delicious. It should be made for a hot day and served ice cold. For it you will need a pint of currants and a pint of water. Put the fruit in a saucepan, cover with the water, and bring to the boiling point. Add a scant half cup of sugar and strain through a pureet selve. Put back on the fire and thicken with a tablespoonful of arrowroot, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, stir until smooth, bring to the boiling point, and set aside to cool. It boiling point, and set aside to is improved by adding two tablespoonfuls of white wine. Serve as you would boullion or punch.
